Their names and the places to which they have been assigned are Quentin R Bates, Manila, Republic of the Philippines; Daniel E Brady, Wellington, New Zealand; Joseph E Dodson, Bangkok, Thailand, and Clarence E Pike, Lima, Peru

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:
We want to say "Thank You" for the excellent coverage you gave the Lancaster poultry center's annual barbecue, June 7. Since we operated the cooking contest for the poultry center, we were especially happy to see the fine story and pictures given the contest

To The Editor:
Your editorial in the current issue of Lancaster Farming is most appropriate. As a former extension worker, both at the county level and as a state specialist in Washington State and in New York, the duplication of effort among federal agencies is appalling and disturbing.

Your reference to less help at the local level with integration is certainly borne out by a recent visit to Alabama in their annual convention of Alabama Poultry Industry Association. They had a three-day affair and Professor Dale F King, head of the Poultry Husbandry Department, told me that their extension meetings were not being attended at all. Therefore, they were considering staging a poultry serviceman's convention or meeting Maryland embarked on this program a year or so ago, probably for the same reason.

I was impressed by the number of associations involved in the Alabama Poultry Industry Association. This includes the Hatchery Association, the Feed Association, Poultry Processors, Poultry Producers and Turkey Association. The poultry associations affiliated with it include 21 counties where organization is brewing. This approach under integration showed the value of poultry and poultry products into the number one spot in 1957, outgiving king cotton as the leading agricultural industry. Responsible people tell me that the 1958 performance is approximately 50 per cent ahead of 1957. The result is a booming poultry industry down there.

Contrasted with that here in Pennsylvania, we have through the Federation only about 21 county associations affiliated, no participation from hatcheries, feed, processors or others except by individual participation. Yet we have a poultry industry that probably now far outweighs in value that of Alabama but organization-wise I think we could take a lesson from them

Parity Ratio Stays at 86

The index of prices received by farmers as of mid-May stayed the same as the revised April index, according to the Crop Reporting Board. Most important increases are shown for hogs, cattle, and cotton, which increases were offset by lower prices for tomatoes, potatoes, strawberries, sweet corn and milk

watch any chopper
...then watch a Gehl!

Compare Gehl capacity. Watch how the Chop-All barrels through heavy stands of sorghum, grass or corn—short or tall, the easy-running Gehl chops it all. See how the fine-cutting Gehl packs up to 80 percent more forage on every load. No wonder more farmers own Chop-All than any other independent make. Come in and ask us to prove Gehl's capacity—and check the rugged trouble-free Gehl construction.

You can't beat Gehl's lower price
