Silage Users On the Rise

Silage production keeps growing, and harvesting methods keep improving. Horsedrawn cutting sleds were used when silage was first reported on a small scale, in this country in 1875. But field choppers have harvested over 80 per cent of the silage in recent years.

A USDA survey indicates that about one-eighth of our farms used silage in 1955. The study, conducted by ARS and Agricultural Marketing Service on 29,000 farms, shows an increase in silage making and in number of farms using silage. This trend is pronounced everywhere except in the Lake and Northeastern States.

Production in 1955 ran 73 million tons — one third more than in 1951. The 600,000 farms making silage in 1955 represent a 20 per cent increase in 5 years.

Greiders Do It Again!

High Leghorn Pen In

1958 Storrs Egg Laying Test

This pen of Greider leghorn hens finished the year with 3508 eggs and 3779 points.

This fact may not seem too much in itself, but deeper, we believe offer continuing proof that Greider leghorns are plain downright hard to beat.

Our competitors know this only too well, regardless of what they might be saying.

NOW IS THE TIME TO ORDER. SOME DATES ARE ALREADY FILLED.
