

Agents to Aid Future Agriculture Students

County agricultural agents are now arranging for interviews between prospective students in agriculture at the Pennsylvania State University and Dr. R. B. Dickerson, director of resident instruction in the College of Agriculture.

Dr. Dickerson says several county agents have called him in recent weeks to schedule interviews. This was a result of Dickerson's talk on the need for more graduates in agriculture during the annual conference of the Agricultural Extension Service in January.

As part of his talk, Dr. Dickerson supplied each county Extension office with a folder containing information on training in agriculture.

The information includes a list of scholarships, costs of attending the College of Agriculture at Penn State, careers in agriculture, and placements of recent graduates.

"County agents do an excellent job of discussing careers in agriculture at meetings of service clubs and farm organizations," Dr. Dickerson points out.

"In this way the agents acquaint many parents and friends of prospective students with the training at Penn State," he adds.

Counties leading with students in agriculture at Penn State are: Allegheny 115; Centre 84; Montgomery 63; Philadelphia 61; Schuylkill 55; Westmoreland 48; Delaware 47; Chester 40; Lancaster 39; Bucks and Luzerne 37, and Berks 35.
