Best Food Buys Christmas Foods Abundant

Christmas cooking and party planning are getting top billing this weekend. Foodshoppers in this area will find abundance in all local markets, reports Tom Piper, Penn State Extension Marketing Agent.

The traditional turkey will receive the greatest emphasis in meat department features and will offer good value, although prices will be somewhat higher than those prevailing during the Thanksgiving holiday. Smoked and canned hams will share the promotional spotlight but likewise at firm price levels.

Families who prefer dark poultry meat to white meat might choose either duck or goose. These fowl provide 100 per cent dark moist meat. Fresh pork loins, picnics and spare ribs will be available at generally reduced prices and certain steak fish will share this value listing for the holiday weekend.

Supplies of citrus fruit promise to be adequate for the holiday demand. Grapefruit are exhibiting good quality and prices are reasonable. Small size oranges hold the best buy position. Temple oranges and tangerines will appear in plentiful supply while tangelos are coming to their seasonal end.

Cranberries and apples will be included on the list of traditional favorites available for the holiday menu.

Tomato shipments are now arriving from Florida and Mexico and lower retail prices will be noted on this popular salad item. Sweet potatoes, white potatoes, old crop cabbage, onions and celery may also be considered good buys in fresh vegetables. Cucumbers, peppers and broccoli hold similar positions.

pecans and 1 clove garlic, blend with an 8-ounce package cream cheese, 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 4 drops Tabasco sauce. Shape into a roll about 7 inches by 1-1/2 inches. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon chili powder on wax paper. Roll the cheese log in the chili powder, coating it evenly. Wrap tightly in wax paper. Chill about 4 hours until flavors are blended. Slice and serve on crackers.

Happy Holiday

Warm and glowing with our thanks for your patronage, our wishes for Christmas joy go merrily forth to you.
