GIVE CHICKS LOTS OF WATER

Water is mighty important to the growing chick, says Carl Dossin, extension poultry specialist at Penn State. He suggests using a one-gallon water fountain for each 100 new chicks. Provide more if possible. In switching from hand-filled fountains to automatics, do it gradually by providing both types of fountains for a time.

FABRIC FINISHES

Rainwear fabrics may be labeled "shower-resistant," "rain-resistant," or "heavy rain-resistant." Thelma Bailer, Penn State extension clothing specialist, says that water-repellent finishes offer a lesser degree of rain protection than waterproof garments which keep you dry in a heavy downpour. But waterproof finishes coat the fabric with a substance, such as rubber resin, which completely seals out both water and air. This makes the garment somewhat uncomfortable in warm weather.

SHORT COURSES POPULAR

More than 15,000 men and women have enrolled in agricultural short courses at the Pennsylvania State University since the courses were first offered in 1891.
