

Conservation Field Day Held

The Weather played one of the most important roles for the second year in a row at the second annual Field Day of the Lancaster County Soil Conservation District.

Drought conditions on Wednesday made several planned demonstrations virtually impossible, but the tours to conservation practices on Speedwell Forge went off as planned. During the scheduled day last year, rain fell during most of the day forcing cancellation of practically all the scheduled events.

In Wednesday's tour, wagons loaded with approximately 100 visitors to the Lititz R2 farm stopped at the site of tile drainage fields, diversion terraces, woodland border cuttings and plantings, strip cropping and tree nurseries while members of the soil conservation service explained the value of conservation on the land.

John Kitch, service forester, in a woodland plot with many trees and shrubs marked for identification told farmers what help they could receive from the Forest Service, while the game commission, through a demonstration planting and sample border cutting told farmers of the value of wildlife in the conservation program.

Fourteen agencies cooperated with the soil conservation district in sponsoring the field day.

Farm Societies Plan County Convention

County Convention plans were made by the executive board of the Society of Farm Women of Lancaster County at a recent meeting in the home of Mrs. Lewis Bixler, Marietta R1.

The convention will be held Saturday, November 3, in the Pequea Valley High School.

Farm Women Society members will also assist three picnics for migrant workers in the county.

Mrs. Kenneth Eshelman, county president was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. Andrew Nissley led devotions.
