AAMA) is the important factor in the program. No other group has the capacity to do the job."

He said production has been getting a lot of attention, but marketing has too long been neglected. "We need to do this job of bargaining or someone else will do it if we don't," he said.

He said the other agencies which might do the job if farmers fail to organize for bargaining, are labor unions and the federal government — through the use of marketing orders.

"We believe many more agricultural products — perhaps all — will be produced under contract in the future.
If this comes, we will be prepared with a marketing organization," Tyler said.
