

Tomato Plants Shipped In Are Of Good Quality

HARRISBURG—First of the tomato seedling plants to arrive this spring from southern suppliers for Pennsylvania canneries growers were "clean and sturdy," William L. Yount, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture pathologist, said today. Yount checks these shipments each year to assure pest-free, quality plants for growers.

By May 10 fifteen trailer loads of plants had arrived—about one-eighth of the total volume expected. Yount said the shipments will continue until planting is completed in early June. The first arrivals were from Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Texas and other southern states.

Last year Pennsylvania growers took 153 truckloads of plants, but will need fewer this year owing to a reduction in processing tomato acreage from 13,600 to 10,700.

Henry F. Nixon, director of the department's Bureau of Plant Industry, said large stocks of stored processed tomato products largely account for the reduced acreage. He said other major production areas plan to reduce their acreage, and that the U.S. total is down 20 per cent from 1962 and 15 per cent from the 1957-61 average.

Because of the big backlog of inventories a number of processing plants have closed or will curtail operations. Tomato processing has been discontinued at the H. J. Heinz plant at Chambersburg, although it will continue to operate as a major producer of processed baby foods.

PROFIT GOOD MOTIVE
It might be well for some of our labor leaders to remember that Samuel Gompers, widely acclaimed labor leader, once said: "The worst crime against working people is a company which fails to operate at a profit."

Save Your Toes
The whirling knife-edged blade of a rotary lawn mower is vicious, warns Ralph Patterson, Penn State extension safety specialist. He suggests choosing a mower that is shielded well down toward the ground and treating it as you would a naked buzz saw. Be careful and save your toes!

CONSIDER THIS
The Calumet, Mich. News reports: "Before you pick up that nice looking young man thumbing a ride, consider this: The FBI reports that prints of two out of five thumbs raised to beg a ride are on file with the police. Still want to give him a lift?"
