Cold Weather Fails To Harm Winter Grains

Unusually cold weather prevailed during December but winter wheat, barley and rye had protective snow cover to minimize damage according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Except for a few days temperatures were persistently below normal and at Pittsburgh average temperature was the lowest of record dating back to 1871. At other Weather Bureau stations temperatures approached record lows. Precipitation for the month, mostly as snowfall, was one-half to one inch below normal. The heaviest general snowfall occurred on December 23 when amounts totaled 10 inches or more in some areas. Most areas of the State had snow cover most of the month. Shortly after Christmas melting snow added some moisture to soils.

Two Countians Win Prizes In Broiler Contest

Two Lancaster County broiler growers are winners in a contest conducted by Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, Harrisburg.

They are H. Harold Miller, Conestoga RD2, and Paul Hershey, Manheim RD2. Each received a four-quart electric ice cream freezer in the "broiler buster" competition.

The contest was held for Farm Bureau broiler growers in three groups: those with flock sizes up to 7,500 birds, flocks from 7,500 to 11,000, and over 11,000. Miller topped the under-7,500 group, and Hershey was in the 11,000-plus category.

Winners were determined on the basis of lowest per-pound cost of production, according to Duncan F. Woodward, manager, Farm Bureau Production Services. Jay Haberker Lantz, is flock supervisor for the two Lancaster winners.
