camera film, that a trained person can read. This machine would not be particularly practical for the small farm, however, since it costs about $5000.

Dwight Younkin, Livestock Extension Specialist, Penn State, gave a back-fat probing demonstration. A cut is made in the skin at three locations on the hog's back. A special ruler is inserted into each of these slits and stops when it reaches muscle. An average of the three readings is used to estimate the inches of back-fat.

Glenn Kean, Meat Specialist, Penn State, gave a demonstration of how to cut-out a hog and explained the different types of cuts, and where each one came from.

ATLANTIC BREEDERS COOPERATIVE

From 5-7 p.m. the Lancaster County Swine Producers Association put on a pork barbecue. Center-cut pork chops were done over a charcoal fire, and this writer can report that they were delicious! About 175 people were served at this affair.

GREIDER LEGHORN FARMS, INC., MT. JOY, recently took a busload of thirty-eight poultrymen on a three-day trip to the Shaver Poultry Breeding Farms, Ltd. at Galt, Ontario. The trip included stops at Niagara Falls, and at the Eastman Kodak Co. plant in Rochester. At Galt, the group toured two of the Shaver breeding farms, and attended an educational program. The day was climaxed by a banquet, and a talk by Donald McQ. Shaver, president of Shaver Farms.
