Freeze Broilers For Convenience

You can freeze broilers whole, in halves, or in pieces, but they take less space in the freezer if you cut them into serving pieces before freezing. Also pieces are more convenient to handle than a whole bird.

Wrap pieces of a cut-up bird separately first, then put pieces in convenient size packages and freeze. Wrap tightly in a moisture-vaporproof material to prevent the meat from drying out.

To save freezer space, package only meaty pieces. You can cook bony pieces, remove the meat and use at once or freeze with the concentrated broth.

Giblets are best used fresh. But if you freeze them, put in a separate package.

Darkened bones sometimes develop in young frozen poultry—an effect of freezing on the red coloring matter of the red blood corpuscles in the bone. This darkening detracts from the appearance but does not affect the keeping quality or flavor of the meat.

Good To Know Anytime

Check the label before buying a carpet or rug. The label will state exact fiber content, where the carpet was made, and the manufacturer's name. Also it may state special treatments, such as mothproofing. Save all carpet and rug label for future reference to patterns numbers or colors—you'll find the information helpful.

Impulse buying can wreck a good food budget. To protect your grocery spending against this pitfall, head for the store with a shopping list. A check on food store advertisements will help you plan the list and menus that will take advantage of the food specials.

The nutrients most often lacking in teenage diets are calcium and ascorbic acid. One reason for the calcium deficiency is not enough milk. Too few vegetables and fruits result in a deficiency of ascorbic acid.
