operated farms in their home countries. This aim is absolutely crucial to the long-term welfare of their countries. By serving as one of their training areas, Pennsylvania is making a significant contribution to the future development of agriculture in these countries."

Most of the group began their U.S. trip in July with an orientation meeting in Washington D.C. Then they visited Wisconsin and West Virginia before coming to Pennsylvania. On January 9 they will leave for Lewisburg, and then to Harrisburg for further study of the FHA program. They will be accompanied by Jack D. Hortman, representative of the FHA national office in Washington.

Heavy line shows position of Musser Leghorns among all pens in the 1964 Pa. Random Test in respect to egg production. This is from the start of 50% production and is projected for 2 months beyond end of test. This strong ZIP in production comes when many other pens are fading—when egg prices are strongest. Other Musser features: 100% Chick livability; 92% Laying House Livability; 69.1% Hen-Day Production.
