 ul programs, according to e Bureau official. This year y hauls in the Lancaster ea will begin on or about ugust 2, Kelly stated.
 "A day-haul program is an ntensive recruitment effort de-gned to assemble a sufficient umber of local workers at a e-designated assembly point meet the daily labor deands of a particular crop rvest," the Bureau official explained. "It has proved to be e most successful and effecve means of mobilizing and irecting the available local work force to local areas of throughout the state, and special ones for school-age youths were operated in 18 communities. As many as 7,100 workers commuted to and from farm jobs through Bureau sponsored day-hauls at the peak of the harvest season.

Through such programs, he added, daily round-trip transportation is provided to farm job sites by farmers, by labor contractors who serve as crew leaders or by private car pools. In addition to automobiles, day-hauls are conducted in buses and in a few instances in trucks into which seats have been installed. According to the local office manager, special day-hauls for youths to nearby farms also occasionally use bicycles.

Last year, he said, successful day-haul programs were organized in 117 communities

Eugene Hosler

 Aug. 16-29. Sharon Boyer, New Brighton, Beaver county, the other winner, will attend Aug. 2-15.

Camp Miniwanca is sponsored by the American Youth Foundation. Over 2,000 young adults and leaders of youth attend this camp annually. While there, Eugene will take part in courses in Christian ideals, personal foundations and enrichment, and leadership principles and practice. He will also participate in group, social, and recreational activities.

Eugene, a student at Elizabethtown College, is a member of the Red Rose 4-H Baby Beef and Lamb Club and has been a 4-H member for nine years. He has served his local club as president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, and was vice-president and treasurer of 4-H County Council.

He was a member of the Lancaster County 4-H Livestock Judging Team and several years ago showed the junior grand champion steer at the Pennsylvania Livestock Exposition.

He has attended the Citizenship Short Course in Washington, D. C., National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago as a State 4-H Swine National Awards winner, Pennsylvania 4-H Congress, and the Pennsylvania Association of Farm Cooperatives Summer Institute.
