The Victor F Weaver, Inc, plant is now one of the largest and most modern operations of its kind in Pennsylvania The company processes about 300 000 broilers and 7, 000 cases of eggs each week for the wholesale markets in most of the major cities in the northeastern part of the United States

It also produces cut up and frozen poultry parts which are exported to foreign markets and it processes fullycooked products which are becoming increasingly popular with the modern housewife.

Under an agreement between the Pennsylvania and U S departments of agriculture, poultry products of the Weaver plant are inspected by federal inspectors and car-1) the USDA seal of quality and grade to foreign countries end many cities in the east. Eggs are packed under the
