Some Guidelines For Clothing Selection For Older Women

Choosing the right clothes helps middle-aged and older women achieve the special attractiveness that comes only with maturity. Some things to consider in clothing for these age groups include:
 Lightness in weight of fabric because it is less tiring to wear.
 Warmth of fabric because of reduced temperatures among older people.
 Flexibility in fabric and garment construction to give comfort in movement.
 Finishes that add plus performance values to the fabrics.
 Colors that are fast to wear and to methods of care.
 Also consider the esthetic factors. Mature and older people should wear shades that flatter the skin and hair tones, colors that enhance their appearance and personality.

Broiler-Fryers Preferred

More broiler-fryers figured in meals of families in the United States during 1964 than during 1956. This is what United States Department of Agriculture research workers found when they asked homemakers for their opinions on broiler-fryers, then compared the findings with a similar study made in 1956.

Of the homemakers interviewed in the 1964 study, almost two-thirds served broiler-fryers at least once a week. In 1956, only half the homemakers interviewed had served broiler-fryers this often. Homemakers in the Northeast and the West favored the young chickens and these homemakers showed the greatest increase in numbers serving broiler-fryers one or more times a week.
