Manheim Fair Closes The '65 Country Fair Season

Glenn Sauder Scores Triple Championships In Hog Show

Glenn Sauder, fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Russell Sauder of Manheim R3, showed his heavy-weight Yorkshire barrow to the market hog championship on Wednesday at the Manheim Fair. His top place lightweight Hamp-York crossbred barrow took reserve championship honors, and his pen of 10 market hogs captured the championship in that class. The triple winner is an eighth grade student at Manheim Central High School.

"Terry" Does It Again; Grand Champion At Manheim Dairy Show

Oliverdale Inspiration Terry, the nine-year-old Holstein cow owned jointly by Robert Kauffman, Elizabethtown R1, and J. Robert Hess of Strasburg R1, took her third grand championship in as many attempts. She won her latest title at the Manheim Community Fair on Thursday night. Her previous triumphs were scored at the Southeastern District Black and White Show at Hershey in late August, and at the Lampeter Fair in September.

The junior champion Holstein was a home-raised junior yearling, Penn Springs Master Pepper, shown by Susan Kauffman (Susan is the 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kauffman, and is a 7th grader at Elizabethtown High School. "Pepper" also won the 4H, FFA title for her young owner.

Lorae Harbold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Harbold of Elizabethtown R1, took first place in the showmanship contest. Her intermediate calf, Gryholm Skyliner Crissy, took first place in that class as she did in the Southeastern District Black and White Show at Hershey.

Earl Stauffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stauffer of Ephrata R1, took first place in the fitting contest and the stock Exposition—owned by John Strawbridge of Stewartstown, York County.

Hereford Shown By Don Miller Takes Title In Manheim Beef Event

When Donald Miller of Elizabethtown R1 captured the baby beef grand championship title at the Manheim Fair Show Wednesday night with his 950-pound Hereford steer, the Angus-Hereford deadlock was broken. Herefords had opened the fall show circuit with wins at the Solanco and Lampeter Fairs, but Angus steers tied them for titles by taking the beef events at the Ephrata and New Holland shows.

Miller, the 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Miller, and a 1964 graduate of Elizabethtown High School, also had the champion Hereford two years ago at the Manheim Community Fair.

Some Old Cattle Feeding Ideas Being Exploded

All-concentrate finishing rations based on either corn or wheat have been successfully fed in ARS trials involving more than 250 steers over the past 5 years.

The studies at Beltsville, Md., not only show practical ways to finish cattle but also challenge several theories that have influenced cattle-feeding practices in the past. (Continued on Page 6)

Federal Milk Order Hearings Now Underway

In an effort to halt the alleged evasion of minimum milk price payments between dealers and cooperatives, and to thereby eliminate one supposed weakness in the handler pool method of milk marketing now operating under the Delaware Valley Federal Milk Order, Interstate Milk Producers' Cooperative Assn. introduced into Thursday's milk hearing a contract be- (Continued on Page 5)

PFA Urges "Water Protection Act" Be Studied Before Further Action On Passage By Penna. Legislature

"What Pennsylvania needs is a new water rights law to insure domestic, industry, agriculture, and the Commonwealth of their legal rights to the use of water, not a bill giving discretionary powers to the Water and Resources Board," the Pennsylvania

Farmers' Association said in a letter to Pennsylvania House Majority Leader, Joshua Eilberg, in reference to House Bill 1676, known as the "Water Protection Act".
