● Meat Inspection

 date was extended to April 17, because it would be possible to gain full compliance sooner.
 The amended regulations require foreign meat packing plants to mark all meat products exported to this country with an identification number assigned by their respective country's inspection authority. This entails a major change in the marking and labeling procedures of foreign meat packing plants, and revision of labels now in use, C & MS said.

Persons affected by the change requested the delay, explaining that language and other communication obstacles, existing inventories of printed labels, and other contributing circumstances make it impossible to complete the change-over by Feb. 17.

C & MS officials confirmed these contentions, resulting in the extension of the effective date to April 17. C & MS said temporary measures will be taken until then to insure that imported products can be traced to their origin should the need arise.
