SOME TIMELY TIPS ON TAX AND OTHER RECORDS

Copies of tax reports and the records that support tax returns should be kept in a safe place. Store a clear copy of the tax return together with the records in a fire-proof container. Lock the container and keep it in a place where the records will not be damaged by moisture or heat.

Keep records of ordinary receipts and expenditures for at least six years. An Internal Revenue Service assessment against a taxpayer for tax due must ordinarily be made within three years after the filing date. However, in certain cases, assessments for tax due may cover a period of up to six years after the filing date.

While most records need be kept only six years, records of land purchases, building costs and other capital assets should be kept as long as you own the asset.

There are some exceptions to the rule. In case of fraud, intent to evade tax or failure to file, the statute of limitations does not apply. The audit and assessment may be made at any time.
