

● Grangers
The Grangers stated that, although they were not against changing some of the provisions of the Pennsylvania Constitution, they favored it be done by amendment rather than by a convention. It was observed in the Grange resolution that the cost of holding a convention would possibly run to three-quarters of a million dollars, and that the job of updating the document could be done more economically, and as satisfactorily, by the General Assembly.

It was resolved that Grangers should urge everyone to vote against holding such a convention.

The Pomona Grange members also resolved that the move to abolish the role of Justice of the Peace in Pennsylvania be opposed.

It was stated that abolition of this branch of the minor Judiciary would work a hardship on all rural people and on patrolmen operating in rural areas.

The spring program was presented by Miss Helen Wanner, Lecturer. She conducted a Grange centennial candle-lighting ceremony with the Pomona Master, Lecturer and Chaplain. Miles Cochran, taking part.

Alfred Wanner, Jr., who attended the American Institute of Cooperation held at Colorado State University last summer, gave an illustrated talk on his activities there. Mr. and Mrs. Chester Eby presented a skit on "Marital Mishaps".

The next meeting will be a picnic at Quarryville Memorial Park on August 19, at 7 p.m. Colerain Grange will be host.

Any man's reputation is a mixture of what his friends and his enemies say about him behind his back.
