Antique Show To Be Held In Harrisburg

More than one million dollars' worth of antiques will be on display and for sale during the Eastern National Antiques Show which will be held at the Farm Show Building, Harrisburg, April 17 through 20, according to Paul Deatrich, show manager.

With over 100 dealers exhibiting better than 100,000 antiques this will be one of the largest shows of its kind in the country. Since the four-day exhibition is being held in Harrisburg in the heart of the antique country, it is expected to draw attendance from hundreds of miles around.

Deatrich pointed out that because this is such a big show, persons attending can see more antiques and more antique dealers in a few hours than would be possible through a year's travel. Elaborate displays of glass, china, iron, brass, pewter and jewelry as well as rare paintings, coins, prints and books make this one of the most beautiful antique shows staged anywhere in the United States.

The Eastern National Antiques Show will be open from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Wednesday, April 17, 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, April 18 and 19, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday, April 20.

SO JOHNNIE WON'T EAT?

Youngsters do not often have food problems but if your does have, check the following points:

Is mealtime atmosphere happy? It may have been a difficult day but if there's a relaxed feeling about sitting and eating together, appetites are better.

Preschoolers imitate their parents' eating habits. If mother and father enjoy, or at least eat foods set before them, chances are children will, too. There should be no discussion of food dislikes as they may be imitated.

Serve variety, make helpings small for preschooler. If a child has a sagging appetite, the sight of large helpings may repel almost all eating. Keep the servings moderate. It will mean much more if he goes back for a second helping.

Get Lawn Off To Good Start

This weekend is an excellent time to get your lawn in shape for the coming season, says Dr. William H. Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware.

Begin by liming and fertilizing the lawn, advises Mitchell. Applying 50 pounds of ground limestone and 12 to 15 pounds of complete fertilizer per thousand square feet of lawn should get grass off to a fast start. Use a regular lawn spreader or a cyclone spreader to apply both fertilizer and lime. In using a regular spreader, however, take care not to overlap fertilized areas and avoid leaving unfertilized strips between spreader passes.

Next, rake the lawn with a heavy steel garden rake. This will help incorporate lime and fertilizer into the soil and will remove dead leaves and grass which may smother new growth. Removal of this so-called thatch will also reveal any winter injury to grass and will enable you to locate any bare spots that may need reseeding.

In reseeding these spots, use the same seed mixture used on the rest of the lawn. This will eliminate any off-color patches resulting from a variety of grasses. After the lawn is reseeded, rake again lightly, this time with a grass rake. Raking will help cover the seed and work it into the soil resulting in faster germination.

This is also an ideal time to eliminate unwanted garlic and onion from the lawn, notes Mitchell. An application of 2,4-D should rid lawns of these undesirable weeds for the rest of the season.

When applying 2,4-D with a hand sprayer or a hose proportioner, be careful not to allow the spray to drift onto nearby shrubs. This herbicide can cause a great deal of damage to most ornamental plantings.

A good way to apply 2,4-D is with a chemically treated wax bar, says Mitchell. Simply drag the bar over the infested areas the Class 1 base. Then if he wants to decrease his production down to his base he can. If his neighbor wants to over-produce, he can take Class 2 price for it without affecting the other person's base."

He said there is a heavy heifer crop this year. "You know the support price can't stay where it is if we over-produce!"

Speaking of the use of sodium caseinate in imitation milk, the speaker said, "This is really a serious thing. There are no standards whatsoever set on it. This is hard to believe, but it is difficult to tell filled milk from whole milk. We, as dairy farmers, have to advertise fluid milk if we like the idea or not."
