Working Homemakers Need Work Plan

Careful planning of household chores can make a working homemaker's job easier. List all household jobs. Divide them into daily, weekly or occasional groups.

Assign one weekly job a day, for instance, cleaning one room each night. Try to leave one night free for the unexpected.

One big job a week might eliminate heavy seasonal cleaning.

Some daily jobs could be assigned to other members of the family.

Plan menus for the week and buy easy-to-cook or prepared foods to make meal preparation faster some evenings. Try to shop for a whole week at a time. Home freezers are a big help.

As you replace old garments, buy easy-to-care-for clothing.

Buy labor saving tools and appliances as you can afford them.

Expect to lower your standards of good housekeeping in order to save yourself.
