

MARKET EGG PRODUCERS

EFFICIENCY PAYS

DO YOU KNOW THAT:

- A 12½% reduction in feed required per dozen eggs equals a saving of approximately $350.00 per 1000 hens.
- That our Early Bird All Mash Laying Feeds will definitely produce BETTER SHELL QUALITY over the laying year?
- That each ½% improvement in breakage can improve your income by $36.00 per 1,000 hens housed?
- A price improvement thru BETTER GRADE of ½ cent per dozen amounts to approximately $100.00 per 1,000 hens housed?
- If your feeding program gives you 1% better hen house liveability and ½ dozen more eggs per hen housed, it can mean as much as $175.00 extra return per 1000 hens?
- That GOOD records pay big dividends? Without accurate records you CAN NOT fairly judge the value of your program?
- That it's not the START, it's the FINISH that counts.

acres, and has 50 registered and grade Holsteins "We hope to double the herd over the next few years and build a big silo and bunk feeder," Weber said. "I think dairying is stable enough to let us do that"

Their main crops are corn and hay "We want to move toward all corn silage feeding to better utilize the land and we want to feed silage all year," the national vice president said.

What about the pressure of the urban population pushing out into the Lancaster County farm land? Weber thinks it will make it harder on the farmer. Increased housing development in his own area just one mile south of the Berks County line has taken a lot of farm land out of production. But this is one of the main reasons Glenn urges a college education for all farm youths "We must learn to communicate with our urban neighbors," he said "We need to know how they feel and they need to know how we feel. There must be cooperation. Farmers also come in contact with a lot of business men in the course of running a farm operation these days," the tall, clean-cut youth pointed out "I feel college builds the character needed to deal with people I find it challenging and I enjoy the competition"

The Mohnton R2 youth beside his national office was awarded the highest award bestowed by the Future Farmers of America — the American Farmer Degree — at the National FFA Convention held recently in Kansas City Glenn, 19, son of Mr and Mrs Andrew G. Weber is a 1966 graduate of Garden Spot High School at New Holland

FFA's 1966-67 State president, Glenn also was FFA president of Lancaster County and president and treasurer of his chapter. While FFA State president, he was a delegate to Governor Shafer's Youth Activity Council, represented FFA on a number of television programs, and was guest speaker on more than 50 occasions. While in high school, he was the 1965 Pennsylvania Outstanding Poultry Boy, the FFA Regional Star Farmer for southeastern Pennsylvania at the 1966 State Farm Show, pitcher for the FFA County All-Star softball team, treasurer of his high school class, member of the student council and the high school honor roll, member of the school and church choruses, teacher in his church school, and runner-up in the "Voice of Democracy" oratorical contest He was a delegate to the College Student Government Association last year, while pursuing a course in agribusiness at a Penn State center which was 15 minutes driving time from his home Glenn's father is a hatcheryman and Glenn got his start in his farming program by renting housing and equipment from his father for contract production of broilers, turning the profits into registered Holsteins Mr Weber devotes most of his time to the poultry business

What's in Glenn's future? Well, the immediate future calls for leaving Penn State for a few semesters to take on the responsibilities of his national FFA office In January he plans to go to Washington for the Leadership Conference and then the annual tour of national FFA officers will begin, which will take him across the country with the other officers to visit the businesses and sponsors of the National FFA program. This tour will run into March. In the mean time, Weber wants
