

Potato Discoloration Complaints Received

The Pennsylvania Agriculture Department urges food merchants to take steps to avoid discoloration and defects that lower the quality and marketability of potatoes.

A number of reports have been received recently of greening, a condition usually resulting from prolonged exposure to fluorescent light, the Department pointed out. Some sprouting also has been reported as a result of potatoes being allowed to remain on store shelves for long periods of time.

Both problems can be avoided by proper rotation of stock on shelves and in storage.

Safety With Pesticides

Use a household pesticide only when it is needed and be sure to use one that is recommended for the pest you want to control, advises Delbert L. Bierlein, Penn State extension entomologist and pesticides coordinator. Read the label on the container before you buy, then read the label again before using the pesticide.
