

A "sundae for eight" is this splendid butter pecan ice cream pie with its apricot sauce topping.

All Scream For Ice Cream

Ironically, a "blue law"—aiming to foster more Sabbath virtue—was responsible for the creation of a favorite ice cream temptation.

No sodas made on Sundays was the ruling back in the 1890's. Which led to a delicious loophole—ice cream with syrup only, no soda water. Christened the "sundae," it became a treat any day of the week, any time of the year—but especially in summer when "they all scream for ice cream."

Put forth your "sundae best" this summer by serving these simply homemade sauces, one at a time—or all together for a delightful choose-your-own dilemma, to which no ice cream fancier could possibly find any objections.

For Chocolate-Honey Almond Sauce, just melt semi-sweet chocolate pieces with whipping cream, then blend in honey. Toasted almonds add interesting crunch to the super-smooth sauce, good whichever way you like to serve it—hot or cold.

Honey Butter Sauce is a luscious blend of butter, honey and whipping cream, spiced with cinnamon and accented with orange. And Rum Butter Sauce is one to keep in mind for steamed pudding or slices of plain cake as well as vanilla ice cream.

Lovely clear red Raspberry Melba Sauce is delicious alone over ice cream—and a necessity for Peach Melba, that dessert classic which is really a sundae with peaches

Perhaps one of the ultimate sundaes, though, is an ice cream pie featuring butter pecan ice cream heaped high in a crust good enough to eat all by itself. The pie can be made ahead, freezer stored 'til the occasion calls for an impressive dessert, then served with a sunny apricot sauce to eight fortunate ice cream fans.

CHOCOLATE-HONEY ALMOND SAUCE

- 1 1 3/4 cups
- 1 cup (6 oz. pkg.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- 1/2 cup honey
- 1/2 cup chopped blanched almonds, toasted

In a small saucepan over low heat, heat together chocolate and cream until chocolate melts. Blend in honey until smooth;
