Industry and producers Paul Kline, Lititz R1, Vernon J. Leininger, Denver R2, and John Jacob Oberholtzer, 171 Newport road, Leola. Gehman is a representative for R. W. Sauder Eggs in Lititz; Kline has 6,000 layers, steers, hogs and farms 75 acres, Leininger has 60,000 cage layers, 110 hogs, 40 m.lk cows and farms 175 acres and Oberholtzer has 3,000 broilers and farms 80 acres

For the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, Homer Bicksler spoke of three areas of activities for the federation — promotion, legislation and membership Referring to the banner Lancaster County poultrymen won at the 1969 Farm Show Bicksler said

"I was glad to see you win the banner but I was more glad to see you use it for in-store advertising.

Bicksler reported on a speech at the recent NEPPCO show where it was predicted that chicken and broiler meat might replace beef and pork in the future if they don't produce a leaner product "But eggs might have a rough road ahead," he said.

A campaign coming from Washington to discredit eggs on their cholesterol content is being formed and it is not a short thrust but one that will grow.

"As far as I know, Bicksler said, "no one has any facts to prove eggs are harmful, only opinions

The state poultry representative said the federation is working for legislation to regulate the grading and marking of eggs coming from out-of-state sources. An old law makes it possible for such eggs to be mislabeled and no one can do anything about it. The new bill backed by the Federation to correct this situation has passed the house and it is hoped will also pass the senate.

"Lancaster County has 3 million layers or about 20 percent of the laying hens in Pennsylvania," Bicksler said. They also have 11½ million broilers to give them 26 percent of the state's broiler production. So rightfully you should have a large representation on the Pa Poultry Federation's board of directors. And you are represented on the board right with your average in poultry numbers," he said.

The entertainment for the evening at Hostetter's Dining Hall in Mt. Joy, was a synchronized travelogue slide presentation of the United States by the Rev. M. A. Trostle. Mrs. Mary Hawk, local vocalist, sang several numbers and led in group singing.

Why Eat Breakfast?

An adequate breakfast is a must for everyone if he is to be alert during the morning and maintain his job efficiency, says Mrs Ruth J. Buck, Penn State Extension foods and nutrition specialist. An adequate breakfast should provide one-fourth to one-third of the daily nutritive needs and include some foods from each of the four food groups.
