

A View From The Governor's Office

By Gov. Raymond P. Shafer

A "Crusade against Crime" is about to be launched in Pennsylvania. It should be the most important thing that has happened to the Commonwealth in modern history.

Why?

Because crime and our present system of criminal justice are the most immediate and critical problems we face.

The fear of criminal elements is beginning to pervade our lives whether it is walking on a city street, locking the doors of our homes at night, or doing business to make a living.

This is an insidious way to live and we must do everything to eliminate those elements in our society that cause this fear.

Unfortunately, the people are still not sufficiently aroused about the problem to demand the kind of massive support required to win the war.

Just listen to the law-enforcement people across our land. They will tell you that the real problem with fighting crime today is that all Americans have not been sufficiently aroused to win the war against the criminals.

There must be an informed public with the courage to help our dedicated men in our police forces, our courts and in those institutions where we attempt to correct the ways of law offenders.

Pennsylvania is launching a "Crusade against Crime" to create the kind of interest needed among the people to win their support.

I am proud the U.S. Attorney General John N. Mitchell has agreed to help us launch this "Crusade" at our state-wide Anti-Crime Mobilization Conference in Harrisburg on December 3. His presence shows the concern that President Nixon has in having the states lead the way in fighting crime.

In addition, more than 1,400 Pennsylvanians are being invited to attend the Conference.

Prices Received By Farmers Unchanged

Prices received by Pennsylvania farmers for their products during October remained unchanged from September, but were 4 percent higher than a year earlier, according to the State Crop Reporting Service.

Milk at $6.35 a hundredweight was 10 cents higher than in September, while eggs at 42 cents a dozen were up one cent. Broilers at 16 cents a pound were one cent lower.

Steers and heifers at $27.20 a hundredweight were 80 cents below September prices but $2.20 higher than October prices received a year ago.

Corn at $1.24 cents a bushel was down 13 cents as the new crop moved to market. Wheat at $1.25 a bushel and oats at 71 cents were two cents higher than in September.

Nationally, prices received by farmers were slightly higher (three-fourths of one percent) and 6 percent higher than a year earlier. Contributing most to the increase were higher prices for milk and cotton.

Special Field Report On Hunting Conditions

The Pennsylvania Game Commission, each week during the general hunting seasons, provides information on field and forest conditions and chances for hunter success throughout the state. These are the mid-week reports from the six field divisions for the first week of the general small game season.

action on proposals to improve the tools we have to fight the criminal.

These Pennsylvanians include mayors, police chiefs, district attorneys, civil rights leaders, legislative leaders, corrections officials, labor and business leaders, youth and other citizens concerned about the problem. They will make recommendations on law enforcement, correctional institutions, organized crime, civil disorders, juvenile delinquency and youth crime, drug and alcohol control, law enforcement research and planning, and the training of police officers.

the Crime Commission has Regional Planning Councils.

These conferences will involve thousands of additional citizens and begin the kind of broad public support needed to win the war.

It is a war that a Pennsylvania, which is becoming more and more urbanized, cannot afford to lose.
