Clothing Repair Instructions

Clothing care includes proper use, repair, cleaning and storage of your family's garments. And adequate care adds to a garment's wearability, service, appearance and life. Correct laundering, pressing and mending help keep clothing in good shape.

To help improve your clothing care skills, The Pennsylvania State University offers a correspondence course titled "Care of Clothing." The course includes information on removing stains from washable and dry-cleaning fabrics. And there are easy to follow instructions for pressing cotton, wool, and man-made fabrics.

Diagrams and pictures in the course show you the best method for mending elbows and knees of garments and making worn trouser cuffs look like new.

For your copy of the course, send your name and address with $2.65 to Care of Clothing, Box 5000, University Park, Pa., 16802. You can study the course at your leisure and then file it as a handy reference. Make check or money order payable to Penn State.

Homemade Toys Easy For Child To Handle

For their enjoyment and education, why not give your children homemade toys of wood?

The family handyman can come up with simple, yet versatile toys with a minimum of expense, reminds James E. Van Horn, family life and child development extension specialist of The Pennsylvania State University.

Children often enjoy the warmer feel of wood instead of plastic or metal, and some children prefer the roughness created by the saw to a smooth, sanded surface.

Wooden toys have the advantage of being easily repaired and restored with nails, sandpaper, and paint, Mr. Van Horn points out. Large blocks in a variety of shapes are free from detail and allow a child to use his imagination. He can handle them easily and use them to create a variety of make-believe situations.

Children are energetic and like toys that give them a chance to exercise. Hobby horses, stilts, hoops, and sticks are economical and provide plenty of action.
