Something New Added To 1970 Farm Show

The premium list offers more cash and two new classes of competition have been added to the 1970 Farm Show, but otherwise it's a case of a familiar menu with new dishes.

With the exception of the Chatolais baby beef class and Landrace swine class, this year's Farm Show will follow the traditional schedule of activities.

But, while the schedule's the same, competitors and performers will insure that it's a whole new show, Jan.

In the livestock classes, visitors will be interested to note the improvements in quality and performance of breeding stock.

In the other exhibits, quality is the primary factor although equally important developments such as increased yields aren't readily apparent.

The evening shows, Monday through Thursday, will include the same general format as in previous years, but you can expect new dancers in the folk dance contest, new teams and drivers in the horse pulling contest and plenty of excitement each evening.

Monday, the Secretary of Agriculture's Night, will be highlighted with a performance by the Pennsylvania State Police.

Tuesday, an FFA band concert will be followed by the colorful folk dance festival and contest.

The heavy and light weight horse pulling contests will be held Wednesday night, along with a six-horse hitch demonstration.

The final evening program will feature a cavalcade of live stock and a light horse and pony demonstration by the Cumberland County 4 H Horse and Pony Club.

Eye-catching displays of new machinery, equipment and agricultural supplies, demonstration and special exhibits guarantee to make the 1970 Farm Show "better and better."
