Food And Drug Official Speaks

A former Lancaster County veterinarian, now an official with the US Food and Drug Administration, was one of the main speakers at the Veterinarian Nutrition Forum held here Wednesday night.

Dr. William E. Bixler spoke on the activities of the bureau in the field of new feeds.

He outlined the legal aspects of developing new drugs for feeds and procedures required before new drugs can be placed in feeds.

Dr. Bixler is a former county veterinarian who served the New Holland Sales Stables. He had his office in Ephrata.

caster City, and Jean Pryzbylowski, housewife and home economics teacher at Lincoln Junior High School, Lancaster.

Mrs. Geiger reported that she buys two to three 30-dozen crates of fresh grade A eggs for the city schools lunch program each week.

Mrs. Thomas said she thinks the cholesterol scare has hurt egg sales. She also said consumers were spoiled by the long period of low egg prices and many have cut back egg consumption, because of higher prices.

But a poultryman stated that egg producers "got tired of subsidizing the consumer."

All three women agreed they would like to see freeze dried meats, including poultry, on the market. Basically, they indicated, this involves removal of liquids and other excess weight such as bone during storage. Water is added during preparation.

Besides greatly reducing weight and volume, the freeze dried process would make home-making much more convenient, according to the women.

Some poultrymen agreed the freeze dried process should have a ready market, and they said progress is being made in this direction. But it takes a lot of time and capital to get the necessary plants in operation, it was reported.

Bainbridge RD1 Farmer Is In 'Good' Condition

A Bainbridge RD1 farmer who sustained a compound fracture of the right leg in a farming accident Monday was reported in "good" condition in St. Joseph's Hospital Friday.

Wilbur Kauffman was injured when his leg became entangled in an auger or worm gear of a silo in an isolated area of his farm Monday morning.

Kauffman freed himself and attracted the attention of a passerby, Mrs. Larry Landis of an adjacent farm, who summoned help.

Onion Imports Revised

Grade and size requirements for onions imported into the United States will be revised, effective March 15, the US Department of Agriculture announced.

USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service said the revised regulation applies to all varieties except red onions.

Meat Packers Seminar

The 1970 annual Meat Packers and Processors Seminar will be held at Penn State April 6 and 7. The two-day program will feature topics relating to improving plant efficiency, marketing, management, and government regulations.
