

Mrs. Lefever Makes Candy Fun

attended Drumore and Solanco schools

Thomas had swine and coin projects in the Drumore 4-H Community Club. He married Patty Toms of Willow Street and they have a daughter. He farms for Richard Barr near Quarryville.

Ann is a freshman at Findlay College, south of Toledo, Ohio, and plans to teach school. She likes sports and plays basketball on the varsity team and hockey. She plays oboe in the band. She was in the 4-H Holstein Club and had a capon project in the Community Club.

Wayne is a Junior in Solanco Senior High School. When he was 10 years old, he made caramels to sell and earned $40 to help buy a 4-H heifer. He is in the Jersey 4-H Dairy Club. He has bees as a 4-H project and sells honey. He used to be in the Community 4-H Club.

The Lefevers belong to the New Providence Church of God. Mr. Lefever is general superintendent of the Sunday School, an elder and financial secretary of the Church. He was president of the council for the building committee when they enlarged their church. The whole family was involved in the building project.

Mrs. Lefever teaches the young married people in the Sunday School, is on the nominating committee of the Church and directs the choir. She is vice president of the Women's Christian Service Council at present and has been an officer ever since it was organized four years ago.

The only money-making project this church has is an annual auction where the members donate articles such as pigs, hay and corn. They also have homemade ice cream and other food for sale. It will be held May 2 this year.

Richard is a director of the Tri County Farm Credit Association which comprises Lebanon, Dauphin and Lancaster Counties. Mr. and Mrs. Lefever attend the annual district meetings. He formerly served on the county extension board of directors.

Marian has been a member of Farm Women for 23 years, having belonged to Society 4 for six years when they lived in Manor Township and has been a member of Society 17 for the past 17 years. She served as their president a couple times, as vice president and on various committees. Most recently she served as chairman of a cook book committee.

Mrs. Lefever was in SPATS (Solanco Parents' Aid To Teachers And Students) and served as secretary-treasurer last year. She formerly served as secretary of the Drumore PTA.

She is in a Book Club. They have 16 members meet monthly and circulate books among the members. The hostesses have the programs each month which provide interesting entertainment.

Mrs. Lefever does a lot of sewing and does very nice work. She just finished making a coat. She likes to knit. She has three articles partly made now.

She has a collection of pitches and a paperweight collection.

She likes to paint. She did the painting inside their house and wants to paint and decorate milk cans. She also wants to do some crewel work.

Mrs. Lefever works in their garden, freezes and cans a lot of vegetables and fruits, also makes jelly. She enjoys having family get-togethers. A lot of their relatives visit them in the summer also. They can accommodate large numbers in the basement if there are too many for the dining room.

Marian has mimeographed recipe sheets which she gives out at her candy making demonstrations and here are some of those tried and true recipes.

1, dissolved. Cook without stirring to 238 degrees (soft ball). Pour into platter and cool to 110 degrees. Beat until stiff enough to work by hand, knead until glossy. Add flavoring to taste and shape. Coconut, peanut butter, dates, ground dried apricots, nuts etc may be added. Use melted and cooled coating chocolate to dip centers when set.
