Sire Power Sale Averages $1076

The 1970 SIRE POWER Sale, held July 27 at the Reading, Pa. Fairgrounds produced the highest averaging stud-sponsored sale and one of the all time high averaging consignment sales ever held in Pennsylvania. In all, 51 head along with 12 calves sold with dam averaged $1076

This sale, an outgrowth of the former NEBA Sale, found entries from all of the SIRE POWER member co-op areas. A very select group, they were extremely well presented to an appreciative group of buyers. A total of 22 head sold for $1000 or more. And, an additional 6 did so when you add the selling price of their calf.

The top selling individual was a Kingpin daughter at $2025.

Bred by Arden Foster of Blainstown, New Jersey, she was consigned by Doty Remsburg and was purchased by Glen E. Morrow of Frederick, Maryland. She was but one of 10 Kingpin daughters selling for $1000 or more.

Second high at $2000 was a bred heifer by Heatherstone Lucky Typeblazer. The consignment of David Roth of Loysville, Pa., she captured the attention of everyone while selling to Cindy Miller of Hamburg, Pa. Heatherstone Enterprises, the breeder of Lucky, was the contending bidder. Another Lucky bred heifer consigned by Heatherstone brought $1000.

Other top selling entries were a King Ivan bred heifer from Kingstead at $1500, a Kingpin from Larry Stratton, Smethport Pa at $1500, a Superb from Martin Hoff, New Windsor, Maryland at $1450, and a Kingpin from Boyd Strickland, Nicholson, Pa. at $1450.

A total of 19 Kingpin daughters sold (plus 3 calves sold with them) at an average price of $1169. Also 2 consignments sired by a son of Kingpin, Top Pin, averaged $1037. The two Lucky daughters that sold, neither of them in milk, averaged $1500.

SIRE POWER, a Bull Stud Federation with headquarters at Tunkhannock, Pa., is owned and controlled by the Northeastern Breeders Association (NEBA), The Maryland Artificial Breeding Cooperative, and The West Virginia Artificial Breeding Association. Plans are already under way to sponsor another sale about the same time next year.
