

Lancaster Farming

VOL. 15 NO. 50

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, November 7, 1970

$2.00 Per Year

4-H Youths Get Dairy Awards

About 65 awards were given to county 4-H youths at the annual 4-H Dairy Awards Banquet last week at the Harvest Drive Restaurant near Intercourse.

The awards represented recognition for outstanding accomplishment by the individual 4-H members. About 150 county 4-Hers belong to the various 4-H dairy clubs.

The banquet recognized both project record book achievement and awards received by the individual 4-H member. A variety of local district and state 4-H judging contests.

Lynn Rover, 15 son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rover, 2025 Orion Pike, Lancaster, received the highly sought Grand Champion Record Book Score award. His sister, Averil, won the top honor last year.

Rover's top spot in the record book competition followed his first place in the Holstein breed record book award. Other breed winners in the record book were: Brenda Eshelman, Ayrshire; Linda Witmer, Brown Swiss; Thomas Aaron Jersey and Cynthia Palmer, Guernsey.

Other awards included State level—Thomas Aaron reserve champion Jersey and Donna Akers, reserve junior (Continued on Page 6)

As the awards piled up in front of him at the 4-H Dairy Awards Banquet, Thomas Aaron, (left) Quarryville RD1, enjoyed himself. He and Boyd Gattley of Inter-State Milk Producers watch as an award is presented to another 4-H'er. Gattley was speaker.

Be Average, Dream, Speaker Urges Youth

Be average, don't be afraid of failure, take time to dream.

That was the message of Boyd Gattley of Inter State Milk Producers to 4-H youths at the annual Dairy Awards Banquet last week.

"Be average," he said, "we need a stable future."

He continued, "What America needs today is a dream. So please dream. And don't worry about being a failure. Unless you're a failure somewhere along the line, you're never going to get anywhere."

Gattley recalled that while he was a youth in Western Pennsylvania he used "to go out by the hour and sit and think and do nothing." Youths can't do that today because schools and communities won't allow it.

But youths ought to take time to think and dream anyway, he indicated.

"Unless you know from where you came, you don't know where you're going," he explained. His overall theme was that those who don't know the past are condemned to repeat it. And it takes time to think to understand the past, he indicated.

But it doesn't take any great thinking to throw a brick," he said.

At the same time, Gattley finds that old people are copping out and young people want to get involved. He encourages this involvement.

But the young people shouldn't condemn the older generation until they know why we're doing it," he adds.

Co. Farmers' Assn. Elects Kreider

James Kreider, Quarryville RD1, was elected president of the Lancaster County Farmers' Association at the reorganization meeting Tuesday night at the Farm and Home Center.

Kreider operates a large dairy farm and does some custom farming and trucking.

He succeeds Clyde Wivell, Columbus RD1.

William J. Guhl, Oxford RD2, was elected vice president. James L. Martin, Strasburg RD1, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Delegates to the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association convention next week at Penn Harris Hotel Camp Hill were elected as follows: James Garber, Mount Joy RD2; Roger Thome, Elizabethtown RD3; Leon Kreider, Quarry-ville RD1 and James Kreider, Quarryville RD1.

Alternate delegates were Nathan Stoltzfus, Gap RD1; Wayne Miller, Mount Joy RD1; Miss Jesse Wood, Nottingham RD2; and Ivan R. Yost, Christiana RD1.

Persons interested in tickets

Farm Calendar

Saturday, November 7
Pennsylvania Livestock Exposition, Farm Show Building, Harrisburg, November 7-14

Sunday, November 8
Pennsylvania Farmers Association State Convention, Penn Harris Motor Inn, Camp Hill, November 8-11

Monday, November 9
7:30 p.m. — Agway Inc., annual meeting, Farm and Home Center

8 p.m. — Fulton Grange 66 Oakryn

Agricultural Leaders Seminar on environmental pollution, Lancaster.

Tuesday, November 10
12:30 p.m. — Farm Women Society 22, home of Mrs. Robert Bare, 1801 Millport Road, Lancaster

7:30 p.m. — Ephrata Young (Continued on Page 11)

for the convention banquet at Camp Hill have been asked to contact James L. Martin, secretary-treasurer, Strasburg RD1, phone 687-8389.

Membership drive for next year will begin in early January under the direction of Leon Kreider.

Committees will be appointed by the executive committee before the meeting next month.

Guernsey Breeder's Set Annual Banquet Friday

The annual banquet and business meeting of the Lancaster County Guernsey Breeder's Association will be held at the Willow Valley Restaurant, 116 Willow Street Pike, Willow Street Friday at 6:45 p.m.

The business meeting will include the financial statement reports of the committees, and presentation of awards. Three new directors will be elected for a term of three years.

Raymond and Peter Witmer will be showing pictures.

Reservations should be made by November 10 by calling or writing Jesse G. Balmer, Litz RD4, 626-8055; Frank Hershey, 442 Willow Road, Lancaster, 397-3994; Ellis Denlinger, Gordonville RD1, 768-3081.

Feed Co. Sees Ag Future, Locates New Mill in Area

Is there a future for agriculture in Lancaster County or will industrialization take over?

Allied Mills of Chicago tackled this question before deciding to locate a major new feed mill in Lancaster County (see story on Page 9), according to Roy E. Folck Jr., Allied president and board chairman.

Folck said his firm began to study the local market five years ago. Three studies were made. One showed "industrialization and urbanization might make it (the area) unfavorable for animal agriculture," Folck said.

He continued, "But the company decided that here (in and around the new mill) is one part of the county which recognizes the importance of maintaining a balance between agriculture and industry."

It was only after the company decided that agriculture does have a future in this part of the East that it decided to build its new mill, Folck emphasized.

In brief comments at a luncheon Tuesday at the Hilton Inn, Lancaster, Folck also told business and civic leaders "I hope we (Allied) will be allowed to participate in this community to try to maintain the balance between industry and agriculture.

A big problem of the world in the future "will be to feed people and let them have choices of things to eat. I think they want animal protein," Folck said.

Lancaster Mayor Thomas J. Monaghan, in welcoming Allied to the area, noted the high productivity of the Lancaster area labor force and said Allied "will get support from the community and government."

55 4-H Calves Bought

Two Lancaster County men have purchased 55 head of top quality Hereford calves in Colorado for local 4-H youths.

Max Smith, agricultural agent, and Larry Weaver, New Holland cattleman, made the trip to Gunnison, Colo. this week and selected the 55 animals from three top herds totaling 380 animals.

The calves are slated to arrive here next week for distribution to 4-H youth Saturday, November 21.

Poultry Federation

Lancaster Farming this week cooperates with the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation in presenting a report on what the Federation is and what it does.

Articles on the organization and its various committees and activities are presented in the second section on pages 17, 23, 24, 25, 26, and 27.