

Start raising more and better Calves the Easy NURS-ETTE way

No more carrying pails of warm water or hand mixing milk replacer. Just fill the hopper of the NURS-ETTE with milk replacer and the NURS-ETTE will mix milk replacer and warm water and keep it warm until calf nurses the mix (approx. 14 oz.)

Then it will mix a fresh batch of water and replacer.

MR. DAIRYMAN:

BUILD YOUR MANAGEMENT-FOR-PROFIT
PROGRAM AROUND PIONEER FEEDS...

Today's cows are capable of high level production — often as much as 2,000 lbs. more milk per cow per year than they are producing. PIONEER feeds and feeding programs can help you get those extra tons of milk from your cows. Challenge your herd. Feed the PIONEER way . . . find out how good your herd really is.

Stop in and see us. WE'LL help you develop an all around management for profit program that will put profit dollars in your pocket.

Huge crowds are attending the nightly religious services in the big tent located along Route 896 just South of Route 30 at the Guernsey barn.

The meetings, under the direction of George R. Brunk, Dean of Eastern Mennonite Seminary, will continue through July 18. The services are giving tourists to the area an opportunity to visit a Mennonite gathering.

200 to Attend Cooperatives Institute

Two hundred rural boys and girls from 58 Commonwealth counties and parts of New York State and New Jersey will gather Sunday (July 11) at Shippensburg State College for the 11th summer institute of the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives.

Six Lancaster County delegates attending the Institute are Clair Witwer, 617 Strasburg Pike, Lancaster; Kenneth E. Grube, 917 Pine Hill Road, Lititz; Debra A. Gregory, Lititz RD1; Linda Stoltzfus, Mount Joy RD1; Nelson E. Martin, East Earl RD1, and Donald Breneman, Strasburg RD1.

The institute, which will run through Thursday, is sponsored by the farm cooperative trade organization and College of Agriculture of Pennsylvania State University.

Professor Hal F. Doran, of the Penn State Agricultural Economics Department, institute director, said the five-day program is designed to teach the delegates more about coopera-tives and the free enterprise system in America. In addition, they will be informed of career possibilities in agribusiness and receive instruction in leadership responsibilities.

Included in the delegation are 155 first-year scholars and 45 returning for the second time.

The second-year members, called agribusiness explorers, will take part in in-depth studies concerning cooperative business affairs. In charge of the explorers is Boyd C. Gartley, Inter-State Milk Producers Cooperative, Cochranville.

"Those participating in institute activities," Doran said, "are all winners of a local cooperative contest and chosen on the basis of knowledge of cooperatives and a summary of leadership activities. Delegates represent 4-H Clubs, Future Farmers of America, and Future Homemakers of America."

A Youth Council, consisting of delegates from each of the 23 participating local councils, will provide the leadership for many of the functions of the institute. Jay W. Irwin, associate Lancaster County agricultural agent, will assist the council.

Several of the conference speakers include Dr. Gilmore Scavers, president of Shippensburg State College, John J. McNulty, teacher, Brockway Area Schools; Dean Carey, president and general manager of Knouse Foods Cooperative, and Dr. Clare A. Becker and Dr. William M. Smith Jr., both faculty members in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology at Penn State.

One of the conference highlights will be the selection of 10 delegates to participate in the annual meeting of the American Institute of Cooperation at Colorado State University, August 1-4.

These delegates will be picked on the basis of their institute activities and scores of a cooperative quiz. They will join with 900 other agricultural leaders from the United States, Canada, and Puerto Rico at the Colorado meeting.

On Wednesday evening and Thursday morning (July 14-15) agricultural leaders from all parts of Pennsylvania will join the delegates for the annual agricultural banquet and meeting. This group will discuss public responsibilities when conducting a cooperative business.

General chairman for the institute is Walter Z. Loy, of the Farm Credit Association, Carlisle.
