Leadership Conference Attended By Chester County 4-H'ers

Over 230 4-H Teen Leaders from the Northeastern States including seven from Chester County, took part in the Northeast States 4-H Teen Agricultural Leadership Conference held recently at the National 4-H Center, Washington, D.C.

Those attending from Chester County were Cheryl Yoder, Spring City; Holly Scheib, Phoenixville; Douglas Warren, Chester Springs; Dean Yarnall, Oxford; Stephen Winckelman, Malvern; and Becky Robinson and Larry Maule, West Grove.

The Conference was designed for 4-H members to explore career opportunities in agribusiness, become aware of the role and need for stronger agricultural leadership and get acquainted with leaders in business, industry, government and education. This was accomplished through speakers and discussion groups including William Moore, Chester County dairy farmer; Ed Wheeler, president of the American Fertilizer Institute; Dr. Thomas King, and Robert Wagners, Extension Service directors for Pennsylvania and Maryland; and Mrs. Ruth Alompi, TV hostess and producer.

The conference was sponsored by the Northeast Cooperative Extension Service in cooperation with the National 4-H Foundation and the U.S. Department of Agriculture and agribusiness.
