with doors and windows. He is currently making some additional church candles for members who wish to have them as souvenirs of the occasion. Again Bill made the design and the mold was done by the local tinsmith.

Mrs. Heisey says she doesn't help much with the candle making but Bill said quickly that she often has ideas which he transforms into candles. They created an anniversary cupcake candle as favors for the 50th anniversary celebration of Farm Women Society 8, of which Margaret is a member.

Her job, she said, is "To remind Bill to change the display

The candlemaker's wife, Mrs. William Heisey, enjoys making sweets. Here she presses mints onto a baking sheet.

Fix-It Tip

Very few things around a home are on the level—and this has nothing to do with the moral climate. We are talking about walls, floors and ceilings.

When you put up shelves, install cupboards, lay floor tile or hang wallpaper, you will discover the true state of things; walls are not truly vertical, floors slope and ceiling height varies.

Always use a level, an inexpensive tool that will do what your eyes cannot. Use a level to check appliances. They will work better when properly leveled.

Being out of level puts a strain on washing machine and refrigerator motors. An out-of-level stove results in a lopsided cake.

molds, and I like customers to choose what they want."

With an open invitation like that, Bill Heisey is sure to be making some interesting creations from wax.

Hand-dipped candles are a rarity these days, but Bill perfected the art and built the necessary equipment for a Christmas decoration.

of candles and rings according to the season, and to take care of some of the candle sales."

She keeps busy on her own, making home made candies. Her specialties include mints, caramels, apricot sweets, fudge and salted nuts. She insists she does it "just for fun," and only for the family and the various organizations to which she belongs. She's been making candies since she was "at home."

She is a member of the Columbia Hospital Auxiliary for which she serves as chaplain. She is also the first woman elder at Donegal Church, a position she had held for five years.

The Heisey home is filled with antiques which have been collected from the family, and Mrs. Heisey has many demitasse spoons she has collected from various places. But the collections she is most proud of are her centennial plates and angels. She said she began collecting the angels after she realized how many she had accumulated.

Bill has been a Star Route Contractor for the past 12 years, and now has five drivers working for him. Prior to that, he worked as a carpenter and builder. He is Secretary-treasurer for the Pennsylvania branch of National Star Route Mail Carriers Association. In this capacity, he collects dues and mails meeting notices to about 500 members.

When asked about any special candles he's planning to make, Bill said he'll just make whatever he feels he needs to replenish his stock. His preference, though, is custom work. He said, "I have the colors, the scents and the
