Clayton "Bing" Wolf is retiring April 1 after a 37 year career as a tractor maintenance expert with the IH dealer in Ephrata.

Bing Wolf Retiring After 37-Yr. Career

Clayton "Bing" Wolf has decided to turn in his tool box after fixing IH tractors for the past 37 years. Wolf started working for the IH dealer in Ephrata in 1937. Two years later he was named service supervisor, a post which he's held till

Too Much Month, and Not Enough Paycheck?

Ever hear the expression, "Too much month and not enough paycheck?"

It's another way of saying that your income doesn't cover all of your expenses. It also means that if you keep up this way of financial life, you'll end up hopelessly in debt.

But you don't have to—end up in debt, that is, says the Pennsylvania Bankers Association. Not if you manage your money properly. And managing your money is easier than you think if you develop a personal or family budget.

Now don't let the idea of budgeting frighten you. It doesn't have to be painful. And it doesn't have to be difficult. Don't confuse it with dieting, thinking that budgeting is counting pennies instead of calories.

A budget is more like a road map. It tells you how to get where you're going and keeps you from getting lost. Simply put, a budget is a plan for organized spending and saving ahead of time.

You can still have choices on where and how you are going to spend your money. But a budget lets you see the alternatives more clearly, helps you weigh values, set priorities, and make wiser decisions. Budget planning helps—sometimes forces—you to put first things first in order to stay within your income. More importantly, it helps you to know that your money is going where it's needed—or at least where you want it to go.

So if you want to end up dollars ahead, the Pennsylvania Bankers Association advises you to plan your budget carefully. Then stick to your plan. You'll find it's a good way to make your money count.

Henkel Joins Pork Council Exec Board

John H. Henkel, a Strasburg R1 farmer, was elected to the executive board of the National Pork Producers Council, at the National Pork Congress in Indianapolis, this week.

It was the first time someone from outside the Midwestern corn belt has ever been elected to the executive board of the pork producers organization.

The nine member board will meet every five weeks to provide guidance for the nation's pork industry. The National Pork Producers Council is involved in pork promotions, research and government policy making as it affects the hog producers.

Henkle, 44, has 100 sows in his own hog operation. He farrows about 35 of the sows every other month throughout the year.

A state director of the Pork Producers Council for the past now.

Wolf is well-known to area farmers and vo-ag students and teachers. He's taught informal ag mechanics courses at Ephrata High School and local vo-tech schools. He's also on the vo-tech advisory board for purchasing equipment for mechanical training shops.

Wolf is an active Mason, and plans to do a lot of hunting and fishing after his retirement.

three years, he was elected by delegates of all participating states.

There were eight farmers from Lancaster County represented at the annual Pork Congress.

Tides Vary

High tide does not always come at the same hour. Each tide is about 50 minutes later than the preceding tide and each afternoon tide about 50 minutes later than the afternoon before.
