

County 4-H'ers To Attend State Leadership Conference

Fifty-two Lancaster County 4-H members will learn leadership skills and take a look at current teenage concerns when they take part in the Pennsylvania 4-H Leadership Congress June 25-28 on The Pennsylvania State University main campus.

The county delegation will join with about 1300 other 4-H members from across the state to share and contribute ideas which will improve local community programs. At 4-H Congress they will take part in assemblies, discussion and interest groups, and recreational activities.

This year's event will include three areas of leadership orientation and development: a leadership school for teen leaders, a leaders forum for adult leaders, and Extension Service staff orientation program.

Selected teen leaders will attend a special school designed to increase skills to work effectively in planning and conducting county youth programs. Topics include communications skills, understanding social concerns and group processes, and recreation.

Leaders and Extension staff members will meet with College of Agriculture officials and participate in educational workshops involving the understanding of leadership principles, working with groups, and communications.

Noted speakers at the four-day conference include State Senator John Scales and Dr. David Gottlieb, Penn State Professor of human development.

Cottage Cheese

Cottage cheese is available in both small and large curd form. Extension dairy specialists at The Pennsylvania State University say small curd, often called country or old-fashioned style, retains its shape for serving plain with salad greens or fruits. Large curd with its large, soft curds mixes easily with other foods and is preferred for cooking.
