New Open End Wrench Has Slide Adjustment

Hog Tattooer

Helix Wrench, a patented adjustable open-end wrench, features a new slide adjustment located on the side of the wrench body. The result is a thinner tool head that permits work in places that other wrenches won't fit.

Wrench is precision engineered and assembled with the body and jaw assemblies machined from stainless steel. The thumb operated slide adjustment drives the jaw through a high ratio worm to bevel to worm gear train for easy adjustment in small increments.

Nominal body size is rated at eight inches and jaw adjusts continuously from 0" to 15-16".

Unit is backed by a life-time factory replacement guarantee should it fail in normal use.

Further information may be obtained from J. Welty & Sons, 144 Rollins Way, Vista, California 92083.

Designed to meet 6-digit government specifications, Everhot's new lever-locking tattooer is used to permanently mark hog carcasses for effective "trace-back" method of identification. With an all-out effort to stamp out TB and other diseases in hogs, this new tattooer provides a fast, easy, positive way of identifying animals back through the marketing channels to the herd owner. The unit incorporates an advancement on the well known Everhot lever-locking principle that prevents insert holder from becoming detached and possibly lost when inserts are changed. Unit accommodates regular Everhot tattoo inserts. Complete information and prices can be had by contacting: Everhot Mfg. Co., 57 S. 19th Ave., Maywood, Ill. 60153.

Cotton Fibers Aid Clean-Up Of Oil Spills

Cotton fibers promise to help solve the problem of oil spill clean-ups, reports the National Cotton Council.

Extensive research at Texas Tech University has shown that cotton fibers will absorb up to 50 times their weight in crude oil.

This is ten times more efficient than straw, the most commonly used material for helping clean up oil spills.
