(Answer below.)

Ask the Old Farmer: We have a beautiful large sketch of a schooner at sea, on which is written: "With a bone in her teeth and the best girl on the towrope." What does this mean FJ., Spencer,

"Bone in her teeth" refers to the white foam under her bou, and the reference to the "best girl" means homeward bound. In short, she's going home as fast as possible.

Corn-Soybean Day Set For Lebanon County Farmers

probably would not believe his eyes if he were to see some of the modern tools and technology that farmers use to produce and harvest their crops. He might also wonder why we celebrate his birthday on the 18th of February instead of the 22nd. Lebanon County corn and soybean growers will learn about the latest in crop technology on Monday, February 19th in the Lebanon City-County Building auditorium and the spirit of good farmer George will probably be listening.

Dr. Joseph McGahen, Penn State Corn specialist, will be there to update growers on the latest hybrids and production methods. He will discuss the latest findings from the 12 research variety plots established over the state last year. One of the plots planted on the farm of Henry Royer.

George Washington Lebanon, Route 1, contained 42 varieties, most of which are adaptable southeastern Pennsylvania. Many differences in yield, standability and disease resistance were observed and these will be reported by Dr. McGahen.

> At the afternoon session, Dr. Willis McClellan, Penn State Weed specialist and Dr. Robert Tetrault, Extension Entomologist, will be the speakers. Since weeds and insects often limit yields of corn and soybeans, growers need to keep up to date on the best control methods.

The meeting which will start at 10:30 A.M., has been arranged by the Lebanon County Agricultural Extension Service. Newton Bair, Assistant County Agent, will conduct the meeting. Lunch will be available in the cafeteria of the Municipal Building.
