A state Lewis for Governor headquarters moved into full operation at King of Prussia last week.

Situated near the Valley Forge Interchange of the Pennsylvania Turnpike, the Lewis for Governor headquarters is located in rented space in a brick colonial-style office building.

It contains the statewide centers for the volunteer operation and for "Drew's Crew," a growing group of volunteers who contribute one dollar each and offer their spare time to work on behalf of the Republican candidate for governor.

Several hundred persons have enlisted in Drew's Crew across the state already. They are, in turn, enlisting the support of others.

Lewis, who has crossed the state more than a dozen times since he announced his candidacy on Jan. 28, spent last week in the Harrisburg area and Erie.

In a camp Hill press conference, he proposed legislation calling for stricter disclosure and reporting of campaign contributions and expenditures. He also listed contributions and expenditures of the Friends of Drew Lewis, a group organized last year to sustain his exploration of possible gubernatorial race prior to the time he actually announced as a candidate. He said: "I believe people should know what an individual spends to position himself as a possible candidate, how he spends the money, and where he got the money.

"My proposed bill will make disclosure of such pre-campaign contributions and expenditures a legal requirement," he said.

Nat'l PTA Backs School Health Education Bills

Marshalling its forces across the nation, the National PTA is urging its multi-million membership to actively support comprehensive school health education legislation recently introduced in the U.S. House of Representatives and the Senate.

PTA's initial aim is to impress on Congress the urgency of immediate hearings on this legislation.

"The proposal of the Comprehensive School Health Education Act is a beginning in the effort to raise the quality of health education in our schools," says Mrs. Grace Baisinger, the National PTA's coordinator of legislative activity. "Comprehensive K-12 health education programs are virtually nonexistent in our nation's schools at this time."

Mrs. Baisinger points out that the President's Committee on Health Education found that Americans spend $75 million annually on health care, 93 percent of which goes for the treatment of illness. Of the remainder, five percent is spent for research, two percent for prevention, and only one half of one percent for health education, she said.

If progress is to be made in the area of health, we must rectify these differences, and assure that comprehensive school health education legislation is enacted now, Mrs. Baisinger insists.

The legislation (HR 13084 and 13085) was introduced in the House by Congressman Lloyd Meeds of Washington at the request of the National PTA and other education and health organizations. As a result of this concerted effort, 37 congressmen elected to become co-sponsors of the legislation. Senator Dick Clark, Iowa, introduced the companion bill (S 3074) in the Senate.

Iron Indicator

Most men need more calories than women. However, if you're female and between the ages of 22 and 35, you need more iron than they do. For the standard woman in this age group, the recommended allowance for iron is 18 milligrams, while caloric intake is at 2,800. Meat is an excellent source of iron. Liver is the richest food source, an average of three and one half ounces supplying 18.5 milligrams of this important mineral.

She can't afford to eat hay. And you can't afford to feed it.

If she is under two months of age, a dairy replacement heifer should have no hay whatsoever in her ration. Hay is too difficult for her underdeveloped rumen to digest. Hay doesn't have the nutrition required for proper growth and development; it takes up rumen space that should be filled with a high quality feed such as Purina Calf Startena.

No, a very young dairy replacement heifer can't afford the shortcomings of hay. And neither can you — if building maximum milk production is your goal.

Would you want to jeopardize Calf Startena benefits? When fed as recommended, Calf Startena provides a "just right" balance of nutrients. Its low-fiber, high-energy formula is more easily digested, and at the same time it stimulates papillary development in the rumen. In addition, improved growth and feed efficiency are helped by a proven antibiotic additive.

Your Purina dealer has some mighty interesting facts about the superior performance of Calf Startena, including test results which show a 19 percent faster growth rate for heifers fed a hay-free ration. Be sure to see your Purina dealer — and this important information — before you start that next group of replacements.
