

Barbara Aaron, a perennial winner in local Jersey competition, took grand champion breed honors in Tuesday's Lancaster County 4-H

Dairy Show with her two-year-old cow. Matthew Arrowsmith, who's barely as tall as his senior calf, took reserve honors.

A pair of E-Town Ayrshires, both from the Masonic Homes herd, came in first and second in breed competition at this week's Lancaster County 4-H Dairy Show. Penny Halblieb showed the grand champion, while Russell Wilson had the reserve animal.

J. Mowery Frey, Jr., had a few words to say after being named premiere exhibitor and premiere breeder for the 1974 Lancaster District Holstein was a three-year-old owned by Penny Halblieb and Masonic Homes, Elizabethtown, which was also senior champion. Reserve breed champion went to Russell Wilson, Elizabethtown, who showed a two-year-old. Junior breed champion was a junior yearling shown by Rhonda Shope, Elizabethtown, and reserve junior breed champion was a junior calf shown by Warren Schmuck, Peach Bottom.

Show on Thursday. Two of the little Freys, Sandra and John, proudly displayed the two banners that will be added to the family's trophy collection.

Daryl Martin, Stevens, was selected as champion senior showman for the Ayrshire breed, and he went on to be named grand champion showman of all the colored breeds. His brother Dennis was junior champion Ayrshire showman, and he, too, became junior champion of all colored breeds. Karen Schmuck was reserve champion junior showman for Ayrshires and for all colored breeds and her brother Warren was reserve senior champion Ayrshires. Reserve senior champion for all colored breeds was Linda Witmer, Willow Street.

In Holstein competition on Wednesday, Lynn Royer, Lancaster, took senior and grand champion honors with his aged cow, and Linda Kauffman, Elizabethtown, showed the reserve senior and reserve grand, also an aged cow.

Linda's first place senior yearling was named junior champion and Sandra Frey, Lancaster, owned the reserve junior champion, a senior calf.

In showmanship competition, Karen Martin, East Earl, was selected junior champion, and Jane Stoltzfus, Gap, was reserve junior champion. Charlene Landis, Lancaster, received the award for being the best first-year showman.

Senior champion showman was Lynn Royer, with Linda Kauffman being named reserve senior champion. They both went on to be named senior Champion and reserve senior champion, respectively, of all breeds.

In junior showmanship, Karen Martin was overall champion, and Dennis Martin, Stevens, was reserve overall champion.

An added feature of the show on Tuesday was a calf dressing contest, which featured calves dressed as cartoon characters. Winner was a Jersey owned by Ellen
