

The State Civil Service Commission administers Pennsylvania's merit system, recruiting, testing, and certifying to government agencies names of persons who qualify for employment through competitive examinations.

xxx
A great variety of job opportunities exists in Pennsylvania state government. More than a thousand different civil service job titles represent many ways to earn a living.

xxx
The State Civil Service Commission is among many Commonwealth agencies which offer "a hand instead of a handout" to men and women with physical disabilities. Special test arrangements can be made for the handicapped who wish to apply for state civil service examinations.

Visitors Invited To See Colonial Plantation

plantation by Mr. Peter Wilcox, farm manager a member of the Bishop's Mill Historical Institute.

Their costumes are homemade too, all made from natural fibers, mostly linen and wool.

"We hope to eventually make the cloth here for our garments," said Ms. Daphne Wilcox, director of interpretation. Along with her many tasks at the plantation, Ms. Wilcox spends hours pouring over 18th century cookbooks for recipes to try out.

Lieutenant Governor Ernest P. Kline, chairman of the Bicentennial Commission of Pennsylvania, regards the "Colonial Pennsylvania Plantation" as an "excellent way to celebrate the Bicentennial of our nation. Of course, not everyone has access to an 18th century farmstead, but people across Pennsylvania can take this idea and mold it to fit their communities. For instance, people in the western part of the Commonwealth might recreate a pioneer village of the Revolutionary era."

The 'Colonial Pennsylvania Plantation' is a shining example of what can be done with a little imagination and a lot of work," continued Lt. Gov. Kline. "The Bicentennial Commission will continue to encourage the development of other 'Living History' projects across Pennsylvania."
