Care For Wooden Ware

A little care can mean longer life and beauty for your wooden utensils and serving pieces.

Just clean an article thoroughly. Let it dry completely. Then rub several coats of vegetable oil into the finish and let it dry. Repeat his oil treatment every four to six months.

After using a wooden article, wash it thoroughly and quickly in soapy water. If wooden salad bowls or rolling pins are soaked too long, they may crack, swell or warp. So rinse and wipe them immediately. Then let them air-dry completely before storing.

To avoid scratching or marring the finish, don't give food the chance to dry on the article. But clean your wooden ware immediately after use.

And, for a smooth, clean cutting board, rub the surface with fine sandpaper occasionally to remove knife mark ridges where bacteria can grow.
