How to Store Lettuce As soon as you get lettuce

home from the store, Extension consumer specialists at The Pennsylvania State University suggest you give it a good cold shower in the sink. Rinse the lettuce well, and separate the leaves as you wash. With Boston or Bibb lettuce, particularly, it takes some care to get out all traces of the garden. With iceberg lettuce, first cut out the core and as you run water through the center, the leaves will be easy to separate. Let the lettuce drain on paper towels or clean kitchen towels or place in a wire salad basket and shake well. When the lettuce is drained, transfer it to a plastic bag and let it crisp in your refrigerator until you are ready to use it.
