

Jon McClure, a consumer education specialist with Food Fair and Pantry Pride, won the Pennsylvania Pork Cooking Contest held Thursday night at the Manheim Community Fair. McClure was sponsored by the Lancaster County Pork Producers Association, and will represent the state in the national contest.

Mike Grube, Elm, showed both the grand and reserve grand champion hogs at the Manheim Community Fair on Wednesday afternoon. He's shown here with the grand champion, a lightweight Duroc.

Russell Kline, Reinholds, left, and Daryl Martin, Stevens RD1, both showed grand champion cows at Thursday evening's dairy competition at the Manheim Community Fair. Kline had the top Holstein, while Martin's animal was the grand champion Ayrshire.

Manheim Community Fair. The girls are the daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Herr, Narvon.

Linda Kauffman, Elizabethtown RD1, took top prize in both fitting and showing competition at the Manheim Fair dairy show.

Lancaster County agriculture was well-represented in the annual Manheim Community Fair parade on Wednesday night. Alice Stauffer, left, junior 4-H queen, and Susan Harold, senior 4-H queen, smiled and waved at the crowds lining the parade route.
