

ED ESHLEMAN'S WASHINGTON REPORT

Throughout my political career I always have regarded myself as an optimist. In the most trying times, I have consistently maintained a large measure of faith that this Nation would emerge stronger and better from its struggle with its problems. In times of despair, I have seen cause for hope. In times of doubt and mistrust, I have found reason for confidence.

But as I look at the economic direction that this Congress is taking the Nation, for the first time I detect a note of pessimism in my attitude. It is hard if not impossible to find any redeeming value in the programs of big spending and big deficits that this Congress is promoting. The only end result of such policies can be economic calamity.

The problem is nothing new. Congress has been expanding Federal budgets by increasing deficits for 20 years or more. But today the situation has reached crisis proportions because all of the past spending and the irresponsible attitude toward more spending that has infected the legislative process is now uncontrollable unless some very tough decisions are made. We are faced with the very real and very scary prospect of a one year $100 billion Federal deficit. One recent Senate study even puts the deficit figure at a possible $120 billion level.

Eight years ago when I came to Congress, there was much effort expended in Washington trying to keep the entire Federal budget under the $100 billion mark. Now, we are seriously faced with a one year deficit of that size.

It can't go on. The government cannot continue to spend money like a drunken sailor and expect that real economic recovery is possible. The only outcome of the policies we are now pursuing is more inflation, followed by devalued dollars, followed by more recession.

The American people do not want any of those things - inflation, weakened money or recession. Yet, that is exactly what Congress is guaranteeing them under the guise of helping them with increased spending programs.

In my opinion, the first test which should be applied to any piece of legislation coming before Congress is, can we afford it? That is the test which I am applying before casting my vote. If it is a new program with a big price tag and no way is provided to raise the revenue, obviously it is going to have to be financed with deficit dollars and we cannot afford it. If the spending for older programs is increased far beyond the budget figures, then we cannot afford it unless we are willing to cut back spending in other areas.

I expect to be criticized for opposing attractive sounding programs costing a lot of money. But I am hopeful that at least some of my con-

Conservation District In Good Year Contest

Top prize in the 29th annual Goodyear Conservation Awards Program is the goal of the Lancaster County Conservation District, according to board chairman Aaron Z. Stauffer, R.D. 1, Ephrata.

The district will be judged on its 1975 achievements in resource management in competition with other districts in the state. An independent judging committee will select first and second place winners in the contest sponsored by The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company in cooperation with the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD).

The first place district in addition to receiving a plaque, will be awarded expenses-paid, vacation-study trips for its outstanding cooperators and a member of the governing board. Representatives of 53 first place districts will be guests on this year's grand awards tour to Goodyear Farms, Litchfield Park, Arizona, in December.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Groff, R.D. 1, Mount Joy the District's outstanding cooperator for 1975 also will be honored as part of the awards program. The Groff Family was selected by the stituents will understand that there is no easy way to stop the government's spending spree. It will be stopped only when there are a majority of Members of Congress who are willing to vote "no more." Until that time, however, I feel I must do my part by casting a responsible vote now.

board from among the 1871 landowners and users who are participating in the district's programs.

In previous contests, the Lancaster County Conservation District won first place in 1953-1954, 1956-1957, and 1958-1959. They were a second place winner in 1955-1956, and in 1973 won the Honor District Award.
