

More than a score of friends and relatives ended up on the stage Monday night with Laura McSparran, the surprised star of a "This Is Your Life" program conducted by the Fulton Grange on Monday night. Mrs. McSparran and her husband, Charles, are looking over a book of memorabilia compiled by the Grange members.

The surprise party was fashioned after the "This Is Your Life" TV program. As master of ceremonies Clifford Holloway commented on key incidents in Mrs. McSparran's life, more than a score of family and friends entered from back stage to recite their remembrances of Laura May McSparran, who was born Wednesday, August 13, 1913, to Eugene H. Brown and the late Nellie Patterson Brown.

Among those sharing the evening with Mrs. McSparran were her brother, Haines L. Brown and his wife Ruth; her sister Bernice, wife of the Rev. Adolphe Glen Cloud of Lancaster; a former teacher at the Goshen School in Fulton Township, Jenette McCummings, was there.

As the people from her past and present filed out of the wings and onto the stage, Mrs. McSparran was gradually surrounded by her own living personal history. Mary Shoemaker, Clark McSparran and Don Eckert were there. Her aunt, Margaret Patterson was there and so were Anne Hambleton and Anna Lenker, coworkers from many years ago at Armstrong Cork.

Let Glackin, Mrs. Harold Alexander, Collins McSparran, Esther Brown, Ruth Ann Wood, Ralph Shenk and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Long came to honor the active Granger. Lancaster Farming editor Dick Wanner presented Mrs. McSparran with a plaque recognizing her contributions to that newspaper's readers over the years.

And of course, there was the family. Charles McSparran, who first met Laura May Brown at a Thanksgiving supper held by the Mt. Zion Methodist Church. John and Ray McSparran, two of the three sons that eventually resulted from that shared turkey, were there with their families. Their brother, Lloyd, was unable to attend but sent his greetings.

After everyone had had his say, Clifford Holloway presented Mrs. McSparran with a tape recorder, a gift from all the Grange members.

The "This is Your Life" committee who arranged the evening consisted of Joyce Holloway, Peach Bottom, Peggy Galbraith, Peach Bottom, Doris Hough, Peach Bottom, and Dorothy Stauffer, Quarryville R1.
