Seasons set on doves and woodcock in Pennsylvania

Dates of hunting seasons and bag limits for doves, rails, gallinules, snipe and woodcock for 1975 were established this week by the Pennsylvania Game Commission.

The framework for seasons and limits is set up by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Washington following annual surveys of breeding populations. States than select dates for seasons within the federal framework.

Pennsylvania waterfowl seasons will not be established until the latter part of August. The Game Commission cannot set waterfowl seasons until after the federal government draws up its framework, which is not completed prior to late August.

This year the Pennsylvania season for doves will open at 12 noon on Monday, September 1, and will close at sunset on Saturday, November 8.

Daily shooting hours for doves will be from 12 noon until sunset. The daily limit will be 12, with a possession limit of 24 after the first day of the season.

This year's season on sora and Virginia rails and gallinules will coincide with the dove season, opening on September 1 and closing on November 8. There is no open season on king and clapper rails in Pennsylvania.

The daily bag and possession limit is 25 on sora and Virginia rails, singly or in the aggregate of the two species. The daily limit on gallinules is 15, with not more than 20 in possession after the first day of the season.

In 1975 the snipe season will open on Saturday, October 11, and continue through Saturday, November 29. The daily bag limit on Wilson's or jacksnipe is 8, with a possession limit of 16.

The season for woodcock also opens Saturday, October 11, and will continue through Saturday, November 29. This year's daily bag limit on woodcock remains at 5, with a possession limit of 10 after the first day.

Shooting hours for rails, gallinules, snipe and woodcock are from one-half hour before sunrise until sunset except on the opening day of the general small game season, Saturday, October 25, when there will be no hunting for any wild birds or wild animals in the state before 9 a.m.

Lancaster County Beef Farmer Talks About Feeding Silo-King Treated Corn Silage To His Cattle.

Paul Good Lititz, Pa.

Testimonial

"I had always put my corn silage up dry in past years. Last year an Agri-King serviceman convinced me it would be better for my steers to put it up green. I filled one small silo first and started feeding out of it right away. The cattle ate it very good, so I treated my other three silos with Silo-King. The second silo juiced pretty bad about half way up the silo, and we couldn't figure out why. As I fed through the winter, about halfway down that second silo my cattle went off feed; and I was very upset! At the same time I was feeding out of another silo, and the cattle were eating that silage up real well. I couldn't blame the cattle for not eating that silage because it had a sour, stinky smell, and was black in color. Then we remembered. We put about 16 loads into that second silo that were not treated with Silo-King. We had gotten a new blower and hadn't taken time to transfer the applicator for the remainder of that day. At the time we filled, I told the Agri-King serviceman that you'd never see the difference, but by the time of feeding I had forgotten all about it.

I found it hard to believe, but it was half-way up the silo where we put those 16 loads of untreated silage that the juice was coming out of the silo. After feeding through those 16 loads the cattle were back on feed and did extremely well.

I'm convinced that Silo-King helps to make a better sweet smelling, highly palatable silage. We will be using Silo-King again this year."
