

Wilcox appointed

Truman J. Wilcox, President of Wilcox Farms, Inc., Roy, Washington, has become a director of American Egg Board.

Wilcox, appointed by Northwest Egg Producers Cooperative Association, will fulfill the remainder of Jerry C. Bookey's term, which will expire in 1977. Bookey left this post due to his pressing commitments as General Manager of Nulaid, Inc. and President of National Foods, Inc.

Highlights of Wilcox's career include service as past president of Northwest Egg Producers Cooperative Association, as a member of the Poultry Advisory Committee of Washington State University, and as a member of the Board of Directors of United Egg Producers since 1972.

Wilcox Farms consists of 1,100 acres in a valley 35 miles from snow-capped Mt. Ranier in Roy, Washington. It includes an average number of 430,000 birds in lay at any one time and a 400-cow dairy herd.

Gerald Martin, Pine Hill Rd., Lititz, has been selected to teach vocational agriculture at Warwick High School for the upcoming school year. Martin is a graduate of Warwick High School and of Penn State.

Lititz resident selected to teach ag at Warwick

LITITZ - Gerald Martin a recent graduate of Penn State has been selected to teach vocational agriculture at the Warwick High School at the Lititz area school year.

Martin, who was raised in the Lititz R1 area, graduated from Warwick High School in 1971 and majored in agricultural education at Penn State. Martin emphasized in animal science courses.

At Penn State, Martin was active in the Collegiate FFA Club, Alpha Tau Alpha (an agriculture honorary) and the Navigators Club.

An active FFA member while a high school student at Warwick, Martin took veal calves, hog fattening and corn as projects. His agricultural background will give him a good base for expanding the FFA program at the Lititz area school.

Along with agriculture production Martin will also be teaching ag business and shop techniques to some 50 students.

Martin will be residing with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Martin at 934 Pine Hill Rd., Lititz.
