

The Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show, held at the Farm Show Complex last Monday had contestants showing animals from every part of the state. More than 1,700 cows, heifers, calves and bulls were exhibited during the various shows that were held, including the Pennsylvania All-American which ended yesterday. Steve Spencer of Penn State's dairy science staff noted that 700 of the animals are milking and an estimated 110,000 pounds of milk will be produced by them during the week. Bulk tanks were emptied twice a day with the product going to Hershey Chocolate Corporation.

In Fiji wives were buried alive with their dead husbands and those reluctant to follow them into the grave were considered adulteresses.

Shingles

These shingles are fast becoming the most-used type for both new construction and re-roofing. They are traditional design shingles with a felt base . . . an asphalt saturant to protect the base from moisture . . . a stabilized asphalt coating . . . and mineral granules firmly embedded in the coating. They also have a sun-activated seal which fuses each shingle tab to the underlying shingle, giving you a solid, 1-piece roof . . . impervious to wind or water. #10140

Storm Screen Door

Because of its safety glass, this screened door is ideal for use where there are children. Because of its insulating glass panels, it is also ideal for keeping heat and air conditioning inside where you need it. The door comes completely weatherstripped and fully rattle-proof for over-all draft protection. A must in winter or summer. #11131

Touch Down
Storm Window

In just seconds, you can "touch down" the glass panel in this window, converting it from a ventilating screened window to an insulating storm window. Panels are self-storing, but all three may be removed for easy cleaning. A versatile window, combining ventilation and insulation all in one. #13048
